WE Lose Prestige.
Women and Secrets.
How Much Is Too Much?
Good News—2 Kinds.

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

News comes from Paris very sad—Africa has lost prestige in European eyes.

Indeed, and when the sailor
the ship begins to sober up, the remainder of his "bank-roll" his pocket and starts to walk out the door, he "loses prestige" in the of the resort owner. If this na-would start, under proper leader-another magnificent squandering much, open wide its pocketbook say to Europe: "Won't you please a few more billions?" all our age would come back.

Supreme Court Justice, finding women in his grand jury, warns solomonically that they must keep transactions secret. "This may be hardship upon the women," the Justice remarked.

Not more than upon men. Every porter can tell the learned judge simple it is to get everything happened from legislators meet-in secret session. And informafrom masculine grand jurors is unheard of.

The theory that women cannot keep secret is as old and foolish as the theory that a basilisk could kill with look of his eye, or that rubbing it in garlic would increase the length of a magnet. Women had to learn to keep secrets to protect their children and themselves from the stallions of primitive husbands. It would surprise some gentlemen to know that secrets are locked up permanently in the lady babbling beside you.

What is money? How much is too much? What would be REAL "inflation"? You read that England is on paper, not a gold basis, because she is not enough gold to take care of her notes she is printing. You are told that Germany is ruined and must be ruined because she has been inflating billions of paper marks.

Here are facts about the amount of money in the United States actually in circulation. The increase during the last year was $3.34 for each person. The total amounts to exactly $12 per capita.

In other words, if all the money in the United States were evenly divided, every man, woman and child could have $39.12. You can see that HAT is not inflation.

"Sound bankers" would call you a financial anarchist if you advised printing more money in this country and using it to pay government debts instead of putting out government bonds at 6 per cent. At the same time, the government did issue two or three more billions of currency these banks would take it quickly enough, NOWING THAT IT IS GOOD.

In slave days a sound black man was worth at least one thousand dollars. You could get that for him in cash. The cash available in the United States for every man, woman and child is about 6 per cent of the cash value of an average black slave.

If we had a circulation of a thousand dollars for every full-grown man and woman, that really wouldn't be inflation. It would be like a mortgage of a hundred dollars on a house worth a hundred dollars. Inflation means trouble, for it unbalances conditions and puts up prices. But it doesn't necessarily mean hopeless misery.

Text of Note Unknown

(The Associated Press.)
TOKIO, Jan. 17.—Government officials have not yet made public the lief that Washington has not only moving the probability of similar incidents in the future, but also again pointed out to Japan the wisdom of reducing, if not withdrawing altogether her troops from the country whence she possesses no sovereign rights, but littoral of which is dominated by her military power.

Florida Daily Editors Are Royally Entertained Sunday By Jacksonville Metropolis

The members of the Associated Dailies of Florida, with their wives and friends, were the guests of the Florida Metropolis, in Jacksonville, Sunday, at which time business and pleasure were mixed to the right degree, resulting in one of the most beneficial meetings and most pleasurable events in the history of Florida newspaperdom.

Any event in which General Manager Quincy Nelson of the Metropolis, and his staff of workers are hosts, can only be described in the superlative. The greater good results from the business session, which will greatly improve the service to be given subscribers of those papers who hold membership in the Associated Dailies of Florida. The entertainment feature of the day was by far the most enjoyable affair of any of its kind, including a boat ride along the many miles of river front, of that city, with musical entertainment mixed in, resulting in the day with a sumptuous banquet at the Hotel Seminole in which was given a professional and more prominent newspaper men of the state.

State Bureau Likely

They closed subject of the business meeting in the morning, which was presided over by President T. E.
Fitzgerald, was the completing of arrangements for establishment of a state press bureau under the auspices of the Associated Press, which will furnish a service of state news by teletype, daily, for readers of all state newspapers of the association, which is believed to be one of the most important for increased interest of readers possible to obtain. The Associated Press reported that they were ready to establish their bureau in Jacksonville, all members present pledged their support to the movement, which, it is thought, will be commenced during February.

It was also decided that the Associated Dailies of Florida would immediately commence an advertising campaign in trade journals for the purpose of acquainting the northern advertisers with the fact that Florida, at all states of the south, is in a most prosperous condition, and that its state and its newspapers should receive the bulk of the national advertising. It was pointed out that, while a number of the southern states were now in a chaotic condition because of the fall in price of cotton, and their inability to raise money because of this fact, that the north should be made to understand that Florida is not affected, and that statistics of the state at this time show Florida to be in a most prosperous condition. It was decided that the Florida Metropolis staff, as entertainers, cannot be surpassed.
Appreciation of the program was expressed by all those fortunate enough to have been guests during the day.

Unique comedy stunts were continuous throughout the evening. In charge of "juggling" Boudin and C. A.
Tutwiler, the banqueters heading up at a late hour, agreed to a man that the Florida Metropolis staff, as entertainers, cannot be surpassed.
Appreciation of the program was expressed by all those fortunate enough
to have been guests during the day.

FRENCH RULING POWER

When is a president not a president?

"Why, when he's president of France," everybody replies.

But this may not be the answer if one Alexandre Millerand comes out on top in his battle with the French parliament. Millerand is ambitious. He wants to be president of France. He already has the title and the salary. But the parliament of France now is the president; it is the ruler, the power behind, before, and on all sides of the throne. It has been so since France turned from Bourbonism and Napoleonism to Republicanism.

Millerand may not succeed in this battle. He may have to let parliament pick his cabinet; but no man who knows Millerand well believes one battle will end it. He is not alone in the desire to make the president, and not parliament, the chief executive of France.

As it now stands the French parliament is elected by parliament. He has no responsibilities. It has long been a "speech-making" job. The cabinet is selected by the premier, who must be acceptable to a majority in the chamber of deputies, and who can be overthrown at any time by a majority. The president cannot exercise any executive power without getting the counter signature of a minister, who in turn is responsible alone to the chamber. He is indeed a mere figurehead. That is why few great Frenchmen have been willing to accept the presidency.

There are many Frenchmen who insist that the president never can be the real ruler until the power of selection is removed from parliament and placed in the people. Now he is chosen by majority vote of parliament, which has displayed a disposition to select men who would be satisfied with the title and salary. In Millerand, as was predicted at the time of election, parliament "picked a Caesar." He is running true to form.

Whether Millerand now wins, or loses, in his battle with parliament, the fall of Premier Leygues, marks the possible beginning of a change in the French governmental system. It may lead to popular election of presidents of France, who shall be executives and not rubber stamps; and which may confine parliament to purely legislative acts. Such a government would bring France nearer to the American ideal and farther from the British form.

HOW'S YOUR VOCABULARY

There have been different estimates placed on the number of words in the English language. But 300,000 is generally accepted as a fair estimate. Of these 300,000 not more than 10 per cent are in everyday use. Milton, who wrote "Paradise Lost" had a vocabulary of not more than 7500 words. Shakespeare, who wrote and wrote, had command of 15,500 words.

But they were exceptional men. The Hankins says:

"Let us show you the KANTLEEK Hot Water Bottle and fountain syringe. It can't leak because it is made of one piece of rubber. They are absolutely guaranteed for two years."

HANKINS DRUG CO. 2-STORES-2

highly cultured man or woman of this day rarely have a vocabulary exceeding 5000 words. And very seldom, it is said, will be found a person in the ordinary walks of life who is able to use more than two or three thousand of the 300,000 words in the language. On the other hand there are people who are of such a type that they are limited conversationally to the use of no more than 300 words.

Where do you rank? Are you up there with Shakespeare? Do you fall in the 5000 class? Or are you just one of the "ordinary folks" with a talking asset of between 2000 and 3000 words?

"HE'S A BRICK"

What do you mean? "He's a brick." That is classical slang if there ever was any, for its origin dates back to the time of the Spartans, when it was meant to convey the thought that the man to whom "He's a brick" was applied was loyal and brave and heroic. Plutarch tells the story. An ambassador from Espirus was shown by the king over his capital. This ambassador knew the fame of King Agesilaus, that, although nominally only the king of Sparta, he was really the ruler of all Greece. So he looked for great fortifications. He saw none. He asked the king why this was thus.

"Indeed, Sir Ambassador," replied King Agesilaus, "thou cannot have looked carefully. Come tomorrow and I will show you the walls of Sparta." And on the next day the king led the ambassador out on the plains where his army was on parade. Plucking the ambassador's sleeve King Agesilaus said: "There thou beholdest the walls of Sparta—10,000 men, and every man a brick!"

SINGLE TAX PROGRESS

Every new election sees the vote for single tax a little larger. The fight in California has been going on for several years. Incomplete returns show that the vote in the recent election exceeded 200,000, a gain of about 100,000 over 1918.

This gain was made in the face of a very bitter fight. The Single Tax people feel some encouragement from the fact that the Farmer-Labor party in Washington polled enough votes to become the second party in the state and this party is committed to the single tax proposition pure and simple. The vote of the Farmer-Labor party in Washington state was 125,000.

The Single Tax party had its presidential ticket on the ballot in nine states and nominated candidates for legislature or local offices in 11.

THE NATIONAL BONFIRE

The housing shortage was further increased during December by burning tens of thousands of dwellings. During the month the unusually heavy total of 41,197,600 fire losses were recorded in the United States and Canada. This brought the year's bonfire up to the enormous total of $330,853,925. Most of these fires might have been prevented, insurance officials assert. Why weren't they? Carelessness, thoughtlessness, heedlessness! Rather expensive vices, aren't they?

Why not call them income tax blankety blanks.

As soon as a man buys an automobile he thinks a pedestrian is some kind of a nut.

Gains and Losses in Battle Over Blue Sunday

(Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Blues and the anti-Blues are fighting a war of attrition.

Each is trying to wear down the other in the battle for and against blue Sundays.

The Blues—the Lord's Day alliance and other reform organizations—decry the desecration of the Sunday. They complain people have drifted away from religion and that, in rushing to sporting events, movies and other amusements they have lost sight of their religious obligations.

The anti-Blues contend the Blues simply want to take the "sun" out of Sunday. And they would like to know what the Blues are going to do with the Sundays after they have saved them. They see the country swinging back to these Puritan laws for Sunday observance:

"No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep house, cut hair or shave."

"No one shall run, or walk in his garden, or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting."

"Any person who shall be found smoking tobacco going to or coming from meeting, within two miles of the meeting house, shall pay a fine for every such offense."

"No one shall make mince pies, dance, play cards or play any instrument of music except the trumpet, drum or fife."

Here are the outstanding strategy and tactics in the Blue Sunday battle to date:

The Blues.
The Lord's Day alliance has referred to "the great majority of senators and representatives in the state and national legislatures" as "weak in morals and incapable in mind," because it has been unable to get restrictive Sabbath legislation under way.

The International Reform Bureau, Inc., of Washington has declared that movies must not be shown on the Sabbath.

For carving a statue on Sunday, Leo Toschi of Boston, was fined $10. The charge was doing unnecessary work on the Lord's Day.

In Zion City, Ill., the premier blue law town of America, Overseer Voliva announces a ban on phonograph jazz records.

The American Association of Fairs and Expositions has declared for a ban on the exhibition of "freaks"—the fat woman, the living skeleton, the missing link and their colleagues.

E. C. Dinwiddie, one of the presidents of the National Reform Association has declared he would devote half of his time to "field work" in connection with helping to bring about "Sinless Sabbaths."

Thirty-six states have anti-cigarette legislation before their legislatures. A bill to close every business establishment and halt all passenger and freight trains on Sunday has been introduced in the Tennessee senate.

Nineteen men of Atchison, Kan., are threatened with prosecution for sending a carton of cigarettes to President-elect Harding. It's against the law in Kansas to buy or give away cigarettes.

Anti-Blues.
Governor Edwards has urged the New Jersey legislature to kill all bills designed as Sunday blue laws.

The Motion Picture Theatrical Association of the World has started a fight to preserve Sunday movies.

Judge Mitchell May of New York declared that Bolshevism and other radicalism would thrive in the discontent which as stricter Sabbath would stir up.

More than 75,000 former service men, students in Knights of Columbus schools throughout the country, have taken a stand against the proposed passage and enforcement of Sunday blue laws.

The Jewish Sabbath Alliance of America has resolved to wage a campaign against promoters of Sabbath legislation on the ground that what they propose would be in direct contravention of the constitutional guarantee of religious liberty.

"The present day Sunday blue law campaign has sprung from a puritanical and misguided conception," says Dr. Wm. T. Manning, pastor of Trinity Church in New York. "The Puritans made a serious blunder when they ruled Sunday amusement out."

Senator Paul H. Kimball has announced that he will introduce in the coming Kansas legislature a bill repealing the anti-cigarette law in Kansas, except as far as it applies to minors.

Atty. Gen. Palmer of Maryland has ruled that the blue laws, if given liberal application, would make it illegal for churches to maintain paid choirs.

F. K. FIGGE OF PORT ORANGE

CELEBRATES 50th BIRTHDAY
January 14th was the 50th birthday of F. K. Figge of Port Orange. He was reminded of the important event in many ways. During the day many friends called at his home and showered him with good wishes. Nearly a hundred birthday cards found their way to him from different states many coming from his home town.

During the evening a real surprise was given him by 25 friends, who spent several pleasant hours playing 500, after which a luncheon was served. The feature of the occasion was a large birthday cake with 50 candles which was cut by Mr. Figge and served to the guests. Highest honors at cards went to Fate McDoland, Jr., Mrs. R. Brown and J. A. Shoger.

Music and dancing concluded the evening. Toward the wee small hours the friends left reluctantly, wishing Mr. Figge many more happy birthdays.

CHAIRMAN INAUGURAL Committee.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
MY DEAR Eddie.
FOUR YEARS ago.
AT THE parade.
ON INAUGURAL Day.
I HAD a seat.
IN THE stand.
ACROSS THE street.
FROM THE private stand.
OF PRESIDENT Wilson.
AND I recall.
THAT WHEN the Governor.
OF PENNSYLVANIA.
AND HIS staff.
CAME RIDING along.
THAT EVERYONE laughed.
AT THE Governor's horse.
IT WAS a square horse.
WITH MARKS on it.
WHERE THE harness.
HAD WORN off the hair.
AND BEHIND it.
BEARING THE staff.
WERE OTHER horses.
OF STRANGE contour.
AND JUST as these horses.
WERE PASSING us.
SOMEBODY CALLED.
IN A loud voice.
"SOME ICE, please."
AND THEY all stopped.
AND AFTERWARD.
SOMEBODY TOLD me.
THEY WERE ice wagon horses.
AND EVERY four years.
WERE IN great demand.
BECAUSE THEY were safe.

AND NEVER pranced.
AND I'M worried now.
ABOUT THESE horses.
BECAUSE I read.
THERE IS not to be.
AN INAUGURAL parade.
FOR MR. Harding.
AND THE poor ice horses.
WON'T HAVE a holiday.
IN SWELL company.
AND I'VE wondered.
IF YOU couldn't fix it.
WITH THE ice company.
TO LET them off.
FOR THAT one day.
AND GET them a hand.
AND LET them parade.
AND I'D be willing.
TO RIDE the square ones.
IF HE'S still alive.
AND LEAD the parade.
I THANK you.

Dr. J. L. McBrien Draws Word Picture of American Citizen of the Future in Forum Talk

It was a large and appreciative audience that greeted Dr. J. L. McBrien of the National Bureau of Education in the Open Forum at the Auditorium at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dr. McBrien not only looks like an orator but is one, and he had the undivided attention of every person present from the beginning to the end of his powerful and most timely address.

At the close of his principal discussion of the subject, "American Citizens of Tomorrow and the Day After," many pertinent questions were propounded to the speaker, but he was always ready with a complete and satisfying answer.

As introductory to his subject Mr. McBrien reviewed Miles Bouton's article, "What Is the Reason?" in the Atlantic Monthly for January, 1921, in which Mr. Bouton claims he has found thousands of American citizens of foreign birth who have had enough of America and who are going back to the land of their birth today. "Vi ha haft nog" (we have had enough). We used to like America, they say, but it is different now. We are going back to a free country.

It will help us in our study to sketch a few of these characters as described by Mr. Bouton:

Deep sea fisherman, wife and two children. From the northwest coast. Born in America 13 years, but is now going back. Will buy a farm in Norway. Says dozens of his friends are preparing to follow him. Many of these, he says, were forced to take part in the war, though they were not citizens. Was not called on himself because of various reasons. Says, "We could have fought if anybody had attacked us, but not in Europe." Excellent type of man, about 35 years old. Bright children and capable wife.

Number 8 on his list was a Swedish woman, lived last 18 years in Chicago, where her husband has a store. He is staying behind to sell out. Will join her as soon as possible and live in Sweden. Used to like America, but it's a different country now. Says, "Vi ha haft nog" (we have had enough).

Number 9 was a "highly educated Swedish woman, a school teacher. Has been 30 years in America. Will live with relatives near Gothenburg and probably teach school. Says, also, "Jag har haft nog" (I have had enough).

Number 10 was one of the nine who expected to return to America. Dressmaker, been in New York 10 years. Is returning to America "because I can make so much money there. America is all right if you think the way they want you to think. I don't have any trouble because I think the way they do; or if I don't, I don't say anything."

Number 13: Norwegian, deep sea sailor. About 25 years old; been six years in America. Is going back because he can get good wages and is at sea most of the time. "as it doesn't matter much where I live. But I wouldn't want to live in America steady. It's all right, except for the people that run it."

Number 16: Norwegian, wife and four children. Came over in 1902. Originally a mechanic, but has for some years had a good real estate business in a northwestern city. Says he got all his education in America and is grateful for it, "but human beings have some rights. That was a fine country, a real freedom's land, but not any more." Thinks he can at least earn "three square meals a day" in Norway, and is willing to get along with very little if he can live in a free country. Talks intelligently of the part played by Scandinavians in helping build up America. Says 40,000 other Norwegians left Norway the same year he came away, and he believes thousands will go back. Says he knows personally a great many who will go back as soon as they can close up their affairs in America.

Number 17: Old Norwegian, been 54 years in America. Says, "Jag har haft nog" (I have had enough). Sold his farm and also a small business and will spend the rest of his life in Norway, "a free country."

he is American born he is unworthy the name "American citizen." They have tried America in a court and jury of their own choosing, where all testify against her and none testify for her and found her guilty. While they are in this attitude of mind and soul toward America they are undesirable citizens. In my opinion, America will be a much better America when it is rid of all so-called "American citizens" of this type.

My answer to such criticism of America as made by Mr. Bouton and the characters he describes, is found in the words of President Wilson in his great address to the Daughters of the American Revolution on the 25th anniversary of their organization—their silver jubilee—in Washington, D. C., October 11, 1915, when he said: "I look forward to the necessity in every political agitation in the years which are immediately at hand of America first, or is it not? * * * I am calling upon every man to declare in a hurry for an opportunity to have a line-up, and let the men who are thinking first of other countries stand on one side and all those that are for America first, last and all the time on the other side."

American citizens of tomorrow and the day after must stand for America first and America free. This note was sounded by President-elect Harding in his speech accepting the nomination for the presidency. He continued it through the campaign. Since the election he has sounded it at Brownsville, Tex., at New Orleans and in the canal zone on the Isthmus of Panama. Briefly stated in his own words it is this:

"We are always ready to minister to the suffering and relieve the distressed whenever we are cognizant of that state throughout the world. That is a very satisfying thought to me, my fellow countrymen, and I like to think of America going on in that same broad unselfishness, but I want an America unmanacled, an America that determines her own course in the world, an America eager and anxious to co-operate with other nations for the promotion of peace, for the approach of disarmament, for the promotion of civilization; I want an America whose destinies are determined by the American people themselves."

Mr. President and Fellow Citizens of America: I am not here to make faces at those of foreign nationality; if I did the mirror would have a fit of humor and break the next time I look into it, for four different nationalities are coursing through my veins—Scottish, Irish, French and German—but all of these hyphens in my name have been melted and welded into but one term, an American citizen, now and forever, and I am for "an America whose destinies are determined by the American people themselves."

Prof. Hart of the State Agricultural college, Amherst, Mass., declares that in certain communities of that grand old commonwealth there are peoples of thirty or more foreign nationalities enrolled in secret societies whose members have a greater veneration for the banner of their secret lodge or order than for the American flag. Mr. Blaine, more than a quarter of a century ago, pointed out the dangers in these elements in our population, showing that the rich and powerful of other lands do not hesitate to unload upon our country the burdens of pauperism and crime, which they have created and which they would gladly see us share. He declared that the life, the seditions, the malodorous and malignant, the demagogic and the desperate mistake liberty for license and flock hither to fatten on the honest earnings of better men than themselves, thinking that robbery and revolt are permitted industries in this free land; that treason may be purchased and even committed with impunity, and that liberty means anarchy.

Not by such progress as did we reach our high estate, not on such principles were the foundations laid by our fathers. Italy did not present to civilization the American continent; England did not furnish to civilization the American nation; that a government might be instituted among men which should derive its just powers from the dissent of the ungovernable; not even that the miserable of the earth might find an asylum. The one is wholly antagonistic, the other probably accidental, to our great movement. Liberty is the first law of a lasting republic, but it is liberty under order; liberty, with equal justice. The poor and the oppressed of other lands are welcome, but they are not welcome to prey upon our own thrift, to violate our laws, to swell and not to share our burdens. Intelligence, industry, morality and

Georgian Is Most Optimistic Over Future Conditions

H. M. Stephens, a live wire business man of Atlanta, Ga., has been an interesting guest at the Daytona Beach hotel for the past several days. He says the cotton market has so disarranged business throughout Georgia that some of the leading concerns up there are looking to the continued and uninterrupted prosperity to help them out. Of the cotton situation Mr. Stephens said:

"We find the farmer the poorest loser we have in our country. If he is getting 20 cents for cotton he wants 40, and when he gets 40 he wants 60, and when he gets 60 he feels he must have 80, and so on. Our cotton producers made all kinds of money during the war, but now they are unwilling to take any less, and as a result our cotton warehouses are full of unsold cotton waiting for a bigger price. Personally I will not be surprised if cotton goes back to at least 60 cents within a year. When the Harding administration gets in and the political gravy gets pretty well passed around I look for some more to stimulate our import and export business and then there is sure to be some change in the price of cotton, and I look for a tremendous demand and a strong trend toward war prices."

With reference to the general mercantile situation in his state Mr. Stephens remarked:

"Things are rapidly shaping themselves back to normal. I have a friend who had a stock of merchandise worth six months ago close to $150,000. He has been on a real sale and declares he will reduce it to $15,000. He is selling Arrow shirts for $1.25, a piece that cost him much more, and many things below cost. I told him he would have to stand an awful loss, and he said he thought not. He said he planned to turn about all his stock into cash and then he proposed to salt every dollar he could and keep it until his dollars would buy a good deal more than they will today, when he hopes to win back all he may be obliged to lose now. He has it all figured out that in the end he will be a big winner."

With regard to the new political fights in his state he said:

"Our new governor, Tom Hardwick, is a courageous fellow and has the ability to cope with the biggest of them. I look for him to go back to the Senate when his term as governor expires. As for our senator, Tom Watson, I believe him to be the peer mentally of any man in the country. Some time ago he wrote a history of France which I understand prominent Frenchmen have pronounced the most accurate and complete ever written. He is certainly a well equipped and versatile man. His one fault is that he is inclined to be very radical. He must try and control his natural inclination as a pessimistic fault finder, for, if he does, he will soon be recognized as one of the greatest men who ever graced the United States Senate. He is clean as to character and a giant in intellect."

of the power and the right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government."

American citizens of today, tomorrow and the day after must realize that the time that try men's souls have come again when the soldier and the sunshine patriot either as the grass of the field, times that demand men with muscles of iron and nerves of steel; men of judgment, men of passion, men of courage, not of cowardice; men of intelligence, not of ignorance.

As was here well said by William McKinley when he was president of the United States:

"It is sometimes hard to determine what is best to do and the best thing to do is oftentimes the hardest. The greatest of evil would be doing because we shrink at sacrifice and effort and in the end nothing is won."

Leading Hotels of the East Coast of the Great Winter Playground of the World

Visitors Coming to the East Coast of Florida May Be Assured of Good Service and Reasonable Charges at the Hotels Listed in These Columns

Tourist Finds Many Delights at the Various Triple Cities Hotels; a "First Impression"

Through a recently arrived tourist who for the first time is spending a winter season in the Triple Cities, the News representative gleaned some interesting ideas as to how the three cities appear to a stranger within the gates. The tourist who has had broad experience in travel and has visited most of the important cities of the country said:

"I arrived first with my family in Daytona and at night. The day we left Buffalo there was all kinds of weather there, sleet, rain, snow and the sidewalks so icy that one felt the need of an accident policy before setting out for a walk. Of course it is a long journey and took up a couple of nights and a day, but when we awoke the next morning after our arrival in Daytona the sun was shining, the brilliant flowers blooming and the hoary bearded live oak embowering the streets, really one could almost imagine that in the night he had passed the 'Great Divide' and entered another world.

"At once the question arose as to whether we should locate in Daytona for the winter or in one of the Beach cities. It was difficult to decide, for they are as different as though they were in entirely different countries, and it really took several days of looking around before we found the place that just suited us and before we could make a decision."

"Tell me," he was asked, "what was your impression of the people, the stores, the hotels, the climate and so on?"

"Well, while this is my first experience in the Triple Cities, I am familiar with Florida resorts generally and I expected to see larger crowds of people here. But this condition is easily accounted for. In the northern parts of the country the people are enjoying one of the mildest winters they have had since that memorable winter following the Armistice when the boys were yet in France. In southern Michigan the farmers are actually doing spring plowing. Strawberries and dandelions have actually been picked since New Year's day in some parts of Michigan, and many people are saying, 'Why go South?' This condition has made the tourist linger in his northern home, but a few weeks hence and they will no doubt be here in full force.

"I was somewhat impressed by the number of northern people here and the very few genuine southerners in comparison, but that is a condition that exists in most of the Florida resorts. One of the best signs about the three cities and one that would encourage me in the investment of money is the great numbers of the moderately well to do people here. It is, after all, the great middle class that counts for the growth and prosperity of any town.

"I note that you seem particularly interested in the hotels of the cities. There is nothing that promotes the well being of any town more than the hotels. Any place in order to get the tourist class interested must have plenty of hotel room and at prices that are right. While with my family I am occupying a very modern and comfortable apartment, I have taken the pains to look over the hotel situation because I am interested in that business in New York and am familiar with hotel conditions in the cities of that state. One can get here accommodations at about the price they care to pay for, while there are some of the finest hotels in these cities, there are as well innumerable smaller and less expensive ones.

"Of the big hotels I could not tell which would be my choice. I think it would very much depend upon the individual taste of the person to be accommodated.

"The Clarendon is certainly a magnificent place, and its location overlooking the sea is one full of grandeur, while from the other side the view of the Halifax river and the trees and flowers is very alluring. The lobby of this hotel is one of the brightest and most cheerful I have ever seen, with its delicate ivory tinted walls and rich red carpets. Certainly it is an ideal place.

"Then I have also visited the Princess Isseena, and it is as different from the Clarendon as it is possible for one very fine hotel to differ with another of equal refinement and taste. I enjoy the spacious veranda of the Princess and the magnificent park that surrounds it and its location half way between the Halifax river and the sea is very beautiful.

"How do you think the hotels of the Beach cities compare with those of Daytona?" he was asked, and said: "The hotels of Daytona are as different from those of the Beach as Daytona is from the Beach cities. I think the Prince George has a wonderful location, overlooking as it does the Halifax river, one of the grandest rivers in the country. I note, too, that the people around the Prince George always seem to be having a good time—there seems an air of friendliness and informality about the place that always makes for the popularity of any hotel.

"It seems to me that nowhere in Daytona are the flowers quite so beautiful and profuse as in the gardens of the Ridgewood on Ridgewood avenue. I often wonder why it is that the poinsettia blooms more perfectly there than elsewhere. Not only the blossoms but the foliage of the poinsettia is so luxuriant, rich and green.

"Then there is the Despland, one of the very finest hotels in the state. I always enjoy any occasion there, and it certainly has one of the most attractive lobbies and is under splendid and genial management, and for the transient traveler it is wonderfully well located, because it is right at the heart of the business activities of the city.

"The prices in these hotels as compared with those of the same class in the big cities of the country are very moderate. People of wealth go to New York and pay from $5 a day and up for only a room in one of the good hotels, and by the time they add to this the price of meals they will find that the rates in these wonderful hotels of the Triple Cities are quite moderate in comparison, and when one takes into consideration that they are open only two or three months in the year, the wonder is that the prices are so moderate.

"The climate since I have been here has been simply perfect, warm enough for comfort and yet invigorating and health giving. I think one winter spent here must mean that the northern tourist in search of a winter home will seek no farther.

"That these cities will grow and prosper, I cannot conceive of the slightest doubt. Nothing can take this wonderful beach from them, and that alone outclasses anything that any other Florida resort has to offer the visitor, and surely this climate excels them all.

"Beach street in Daytona is one of the most beautiful business streets I have ever seen anywhere in the world. I have not visited the shops very much, but judging from the display windows they exhibit the smartest New York and Paris styles.

Admiration Is Expressed for Many Republicans

Ex-Governor N. E. Harris of Georgia, one of the best beloved of the regular Beach tourists, is just back from a trip to his old home state, to which he affectionately refers as the "foremost commonwealth of the South." It is conceded that Governor Harris was one of the very best executives Georgia ever had, and doubtless, one of the reasons was the fact that he has always been in love with her people and proud of their achievements. He is, however, a native of Tennessee.

Governor Harris is very anxious that General Leonard W. Wood shall be recognized and he hopes to see him the next secretary of war. Although he is a life long Democrat and a loyal party man, it is not at all certain that he would not have jumped over the traces last year, for the first time in his life, and voted for a Republican candidate for president. If General Wood had been the nominee, Governor Harris and General Wood are old time friends, and it would have pleased the latter very much to have seen this great military genius the chief executive of the nation.

Governor Harris knows President-elect Harding and thinks well of him. At a banquet given the governor some years ago by a number of his friends at the New Willard hotel in Washington, Senator Harding was one of the guests and sat at his side. He responded to one of the toasts and the governor says that at that time his mannerisms and expressions reminded him much of ex-President McKinley, whom he also knew. He believes President Harding will not outrage any American idea, but that he will go along giving pretty nearly everybody and every section of the country a square deal.

Governor Harris says the cotton growers of Georgia have been wonderfully hard hit, as they planted 55c cotton and have been unable to reap anywhere near the price of the seed. He believes that if the war finance board is again made to function it will be of great benefit to the South and especially to the cotton growers, as he believes that thereby the export trade in cotton with Europe will be much encouraged and greatly increased.

When asked what he thought of the proposition of Senator-elect Thomas E. Watson to enact a law making all government obligations a legal tender for all debts, Governor Harris said he had hardly given the matter enough thought to express an opinion. It looked to him, however, as if it turned into the channels of trade at once many billions of dollars of new currency, as that is what it would amount to, might have a more or less of a disastrous effect in the financial world, unless it was properly safeguarded, as it no doubt probably would be, if such action was taken by Congress.

Governor Harris is also quite an admirer of another distinguished Republican of the North, ex-President Taft, his friendly feeling toward Mr. William Howard Taft. He admits Taft is largely due to the influence of his old friend, ex-Senator A. O. Bacon, who he declares was one of the greatest and noblest men ever produced in the state of Georgia. He says that Senator Bacon once said to him that he never loved any man in the world as he did William H. Taft, and this in spite of the fact that Taft was always an ardent Republican and Bacon just as loyal a Democrat, but both mighty big men.

Opening at the New Anthony Store This Afternoon; Gowns Displayed by Models

Monday afternoon occurred the opening of the big mercantile store of Anthony Brothers in Daytona. It was probably the finest metropolitan event of the city has ever taken place in and none in the state have passed it in beauty and elegance. The society maids and matrons of the Triple Cities were out in the assembly near the city of the country and those of foreign lands were present and the opinion as expressed every hand was that for a city of smart styles as expressed by hand was that for a showing of styles and beautiful gowns, any they had ever witnessed. Young women chosen as models are all Daytona residents and each of them was the person of grace and demonstration they know how to wear the kind of apparel with ease and grace a trait all too rare in this city.

Ella R. Watt of Los Angeles, who is at the head of the millinery ready to wear departments of Anthony store, planned and arranged the style parade. She is a splendid instinct for good style which has been complied by years of training. A young woman in the parade displayed five different classes of dresses. The dressing rooms were on the second floor and on the models down the grand stairway and the length of a ribboned skirt from the store and back and up the stairs. Flowers and decorations of the big store to the beauty of the scene and the music was rendered by the school orchestra.

was displayed the porch and these. These were full of and simplicity and were composed of gingham, organdie and suitable materials. The next day in afternoon dress, then in gowns, followed by the most and clinging negligee. These made of all the rainbow colors, crepes, laces, ruffles and charming materials dear to the women who naturally love things, and last come the gowns and to the interested on each one seemed more than the last.

was noted that the models were pretty and pretty blondes with exception of Miss Dora Williams, a beauty of a pronounced brunette. The afternoon frock displayed by Miss Williams was a layorgandie in accordion pleating picture had to match. She wore shoes and stockings to match. She also displayed a blue sport cape with long collar and a serviceable sport to match. The evening gown she displayed was a very striking rainbow creation of crepe de over white silk and with this a silver lace girdle.

Harriet Crane wore an afternoon dress of white crepe de chine with piping of jade and a handsome green hat. She wore white shoes and stockings. The frock shown by her was of tulle in the popular henna color trimmed with angora in bay. She wore a sport hat of the color and white shoes, while evening gown was of rose pink with green facings and trim with silver lace and jade and a of artificial flowers. In fact evening gown had somewhere its construction, the artificial.

Jean McCauley gracefully displayed an afternoon gown of white de chine, the skirt of which was and the girdle was ribboned and was in the sunset shade collar was of the same shade as also the hat which was made of crepe. Miss McCauley also displayed a sport suit of orange jersey with black sweater and a walking stick added a touch of color. Serviceable and appropriate shoes were shown with all sport clothes. The evening gown by Miss McCauley was of or-colored taffeta and the bodice to it a quaint, old-fashioned appearance.

Alburtus C. Hankins wore a stunning afternoon dress of crepe de chine with orange piping and hat of orange color. White shoes and stockings. Her costume was a white knitted with blue angora collar and a and white hat that perfectly fitted. Her evening gown was taffeta in turquoise blue, trimmed with lace flounce and with white lace over drapery.

Edna Wallace showed an afternoon frock that was a beautiful imitation Canton crepe in white and blue, heavily embroidered and whole had a very attractive Oriental effect. Her sport togs were in white and white as Parisian appearance as the other show was Oriental. Her evening gown of pink taffeta draperies trimmed with tassels and artificial flower and it was an unusually girlish.

involves the least cost. On those who have things to do, there rests a responsibility which is not on those who have no obligations as doers. If the doers were in the majority, there would, it is true, be no labor, no sacrifice, no anxiety and no burden raised or carried, no contribution from our resources to the welfare of ourselves. There would be ease; but, alas, there would be nothing done. But great problems come in the life of a nation, however much men may seek to avoid them. They come without our seeking; why, we do not know; but the generation on which they are forced cannot avoid the responsibility of honestly striving for their solution. And if that effort be made in conscience, in justice and in honor, it will not be in vain.

Therefore, American citizens of today, tomorrow and the day after must combat that dangerous, aggressive, hyphenated Americanism that has sprung up in our country and whose baneful effects it will take much earnest teaching to obliterate by example as well as by precept. American citizens of today, tomorrow and the day after must be Americans among Americans; they must be a part of America and have a share and duty toward American institutions that must be wholly and without reserve, without divided allegiance, and with emphatic repudiation of the entire principle of dual nationality. American citizens and nothing else.

The American men must be:
Men whom the lust of office will not kill.
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy.
Men who possess opinions and a will.
Men who have honor and will not lie.
Men who can stand before the demagogue
And down his treacherous flattery without winking.
Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.
The American women of tomorrow and the day after must be true women. Women! On to duty!

Raise the world from all that's low;
Place high in the social heaven
Virtue's fair and radiant bow;
Lend thy influence to each effort
That shall raise our nature human;
Be not fashion's gilded ladies—
Be brave, whole-souled, true women.

American citizens of tomorrow and the day after must have the faith of Longfellow in the "Ship of State," being able to stem the tide in every political storm and with that faith they must sing with him:

"Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
We know what Master laid thy keel,
What Workmen wrought thy ribs of steel,
Who made each mast, and sail, and rope,
Who musteered through the perilous foam
To use this primal keel to keel some shore."

What anvil rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope!
Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
This of the wave and not the rock,
Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale!
In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,
Our fears, our tears, our prayers.

Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee!
American citizens of tomorrow and the day after must have an instinctive scorn for the pinchback patriotism which brags and boasts and swaggers, mistaking bigness for greatness and vulgarity for simplicity, but like Lowell, they must make patriotism their passion. Patriotism is love of country; the patriot is one whose ruling passion is the love of his country; American citizens and nothing else.

and citizens must be patriots now and forever!

As American citizens let us say with Archbishop Ireland:
"Patriotism! There is magic in the word. It is bliss to repeat it. Through ages the human race burnt the incense of admiration and reverence to the shrines of patriotism. The most beautiful pages of history are those which recount its deeds. Fireside tales, the outpourings of the memories of peoples, borrow from it their warmest glow. Poets are sweetest when they re-echo its whisperings; orators are most potent when they thrill its chords to music."

Today Is First Day of Thrift Week, To Be Observed Locally as Well as Over Whole Nation

Today is Ben Franklin's birthday. Throughout the nation this week the Y. M. C. A. in co-operation with the U. S. Treasury department and other agencies are giving emphasis to thrift. Here are their ten points of financial creed:

- 1—Work and earn.
- 2—Make a budget.
- 3—Record expenditures.
- 4—Have a bank account.
- 5—Carry life insurance.
- 6—Own your own home.
- 7—Make a will.
- 8—Pay your bills promptly.
- 9—Invest in reliable securities.
- 10—Share with others.

All classes of people are interested in National Thrift Week. Even the thriftless favor thrift—on the part of other folks, so that there may be somebody to take care of the thriftless when they come to want.

Don't mistake thrift for stinginess. Thrift is economy, stinginess is miserliness. Thrift is the source of contentment, stinginess of sorrow. Thrift breeds self-respect, stinginess self-contempt. The thrifty but not stingy.

Thrift does not mean the evasion of one's duty to support all worthy causes, but the ability to render the support justly due to church, community and country.

A thrifty community will exemplify good citizenship and have no need of other poorhouses or penitentiaries.

Behind the thrifty man, how he lives his way between extravagance and parsimony, goes in order to give and save in order to live the where will be to discharge his obligations to home, church, state and nation—seven other than that, to the world.

A thrifty man, like a thrifty nation, is a man, a household, a hindrance to the progress of mankind.

Thrift in the boy means not only success but satisfaction in the man.

The habit of saving is the "open sesame" to having.

The art of living lies largely in saving and giving.

Thrift, like charity, begins at home but reaches to the farthest bounds of one's influence—and no man can measure that.

Herbert Hoover in the Ladies Home Journal says, "Thrift and the American woman. It is imperative today as it was during the war, ever more so, that we should practice thrift in all its forms—more so because in fact it seems that the world is yet further on the economic down grade that began in 1914 and also because we do not have now the social control that prevailed during the war. When production was regulated to national advantage and when waste was checked both by law and by public sentiment, there was less danger than there is in the present conditions. A menacing factor today is the moral let-down. I speak of this not from a religious but from an engineering or scientific standpoint. What ever the consequences here and now are sufficient to engage our attention. Everyone of us should cut out extravagance and waste. We should eliminate every unnecessary expense. We should save every possible five cent piece, even though it is worth no more than a postage stamp. We should put our savings into savings banks or into government or other securities or into such strictly useful investments as homes and farms. Money that is wasted is destroyed as if cast into a fire, and the evil results are not confined to the individual waste and his or her family, but are, in fact, spread throughout society. This is the crime and damage done by waste."

Bank Day

The Bible tells us of a certain man who buried his talent in the ground. This man was thus rebuked. "Why gapest thou not my money in the bank?"

Christ, compared the buried talent to money stored away where it would do no good because this unused faculty was atrophied instead of growing. Failing to give itself intelligent expression to expand and through growth realize its full scope of usefulness, it fell short of its responsibility.

We all know, of course, that this rebuke was delivered as a figure of speech. But the Great Teacher taught the Gospel of service, and he regarded money that was employed to no purpose as being wastefully used.

Money is meant to circulate. It grows and promotes progress. For the reason the man who puts his money where it will do no good is not only rebuking himself he is cheating his community. The dollars that are neither increasing through wise investment, or helping the individual through bringing intelligent expenditures to life are one and all lost. What does it mean? They've got no business being there when there's so much work to do in the world.

That's one reason we have banks. Banks are a good money employment bureau. They keep the dollars moving around they help put them to work in reliable investment. If you'll let them, they'll keep 'em in such a sympathetic element that you'll understand exactly how you stand in regard to your affairs.

That's why the National Thrift Week movement, especially Bank Day, Jan. 17, urges the use of banks. It's easy to see that a thrifty man-agement of his affairs is less difficult to the man whose money matters are well attended to. In this way he's helping himself. He's bettering his own affairs if his money is wisely invested of course.

But in a deeper analysis, he's making good in his duty to the community as a constructive citizen.
